About the Training

This five day programme - comprising three separate modules (two days, two days and one day) - has been specifically designed to equip Staff within your Organisation to effectively deliver a training programme to frontline staff in the area of intellectual disabilities and responses to abuse.

As part of the programme staff will be accredited to deliver a two day training programme and be supplied with a customised training package including; PowerPoint, acetates, handout pack and evaluation forms.

To maintain Joe Wolfe & Associates approval for delivering the programme, staff will attend a one day update every twelve months.

Training Content

- Defining abuse with specific reference to intellectual disabilities
- Literature review including reference to incidence and prevalence
- Managing allegations of abuse - the role of staff and carers
- Effective Policies and Procedures
- Victims and perpetrators - likely characteristics
- Allegations against staff
- Group work incorporating typical scenarios encountered
- Consequences of abuse
- Bringing the course back to the workplace - teaching methods and styles for effective delivery

Why is this Training Programme effective?

This Training Programme will provide selected Staff from your Organisation with the necessary skills and knowledge to return to your service and deliver a comprehensive training package to your Organisation's staff in the area of abuse and intellectual disabilities.

We have delivered similar programmes and have had extremely positive feedback on the quality of such programmes with participants frequently praising: -

The practical style of delivery

The content of the training and

The skills development focus.

There is a requirement with this programme that the participants complete a yearly refresher to maintain the Joe Wolfe & Associates license to deliver the 2-day training programme. The cost of the 1st refresher is included in the initial price.
